In SEPTEMBER men and women in North Carolina applied to the JEFFERSON STANDARD for $5,265,750 life insurance—a record never before attained by any company operating in any Southern State. It is an unparalleled endorsement of the greatest of the Southern life insurance companies.

UNIVERSITY MEN, through the UNIVERSITY AGENCY, applied for over $200,000 during the month of September. We are here to render service to Carolina students and alumni. We want your co-operation in protecting homes and business and in the upbuilding of the State. We thank you for the part you played in our September campaign.

Come to see us and let's talk over your needs for protection now. Let us show you today how you can guarantee the fulfillment of your obligations of tomorrow. Write to us or call at our office opposite the campus. We have a plan for you—if you come in time.

REMARKABLE REMARKS

It's the "whitest" place on earth.—Edwin Mims.

The present situation at the University is intolerable.—H. W. Chase.

Turn loose the facts and the people will turn loose the buildings.—F. P. Graham.

Give the State colleges what they need.—Mrs. C. R. Wharton, at meeting of Flora McDonald alumnae.

The Chapel Hill audience was the most thrilling audience I ever played before.—Emilie Rose Knox, violinist.

Congestion of college dormitories may result in indigestion of college opinion.—Letter to Editor of The Tar Heel.

Nothing short of a revolution in higher education will handle the present situation in North Carolina.—H. W. Chase.

We need have nothing to fear from any party or politician when we make liberal provision for education.—C. B. Aycock.

A Christian may as well say that the Church is too poor to be honest as for a citizen of North Carolina to say that the State is too poor to educate, and to the limit of its desire.—E. K. Graham.

The quality of the teaching of the University of North Carolina is unusually fine. The housing conditions of the University are a disgrace to the State.—Dr. C. P. Ambler.

The educational institutions of a people measure their progress, and a great university is the highest intellectual and spiritual advancement of a commonwealth.—E. A. Alderman.

May this hill be for religion as the ancient hill of Zion and for learning and the muses may it surpass the ancient Parnassus.—Cornerstone of the Old East Building, 1793.

I have been on many football fields but I never before saw anything to match the fine sportsmanship of your students.—President Currell, of the University of South Carolina.

The Elis found that little North Carolina, whose football Saturday was clean as a hound's tooth, exhausted their team more than had been expected.—New York Times, Oct. 12.

You don't mean the family of a member of the faculty is occupying that house? It was condemned as unfit to live in when I was a student here in 1886.—Haywood Parker.

I claim to know intimately the spirit and soul of the University of North Carolina, and I do most profoundly know that whatever of will to work for men or strength to serve the State has come into my life came to me through her teachings.—E. A. Alderman.

North Carolina has just as much money to spend for education as it wants to spend for education.—E. K. Graham.

Buildings denied is youth betrayed.—F. P. Graham.

If it is a question of exemption of property or redemption of youth North Carolina will vote for her youth.—F. P. Graham.

The permanent names in North Carolina statesmanship are those of men who put not words alone but their lives behind the great steps in our educational progress.—E. K. Graham.

The University has just had a birthday. A good way for the alumni to celebrate the next anniversary would be to give their Alma Mater about half a million dollars.—Greensboro Daily News.

The students of the University of South Carolina would not live in quarters such as these.—Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of South Carolina.

How is the University to quicken an interest in higher education? To educate those who come to her? To reach out and serve the people of the State in other ways, when she is literally "hog tied?"—Tar Heel.

There is in all the world of education today no greater responsibility than that which rests upon the State Universities of the South. They must serve and guide and interpret to itself and to the world a new civilization which is yet in the making.—H. W. Chase.

I should like to see every county in the State build a dormitory at Chapel Hill to house such of its young people as desire to enter them and then for our legislature to forget the past and make appropriations commensurate with the needs and at the same time a determined effort be made to increase the opportunities of our several colleges.—Mary Mendenhall Hobbs.

In its spirit of democracy, your University is the equal of any college or university in the United States or in the world. When you consider how indispensable this spirit of democracy is to the life of your State and to the nation, you will realize what a fine thing it is that your future leaders are being trained up in an atmosphere of this kind.—John R. Mott.

For the interests of our people it is imperative that we bring our State University to the full equal of Harvard, Yale, the University of Michigan or the University of Wisconsin, and our State Agricultural and Mechanical College to be the equal of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, the Columbia School of Mines, or the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.—D. A. Tompkins.

The supreme problem in North Carolina today is to reconcile two mutually contradictory facts: the splendid circumstance that North Carolina in agricultural resources is fourth from the top in the United States and the humiliating circumstance that North Carolina in illiteracy is fourth from the bottom in the United States. Our problem is to bridge over this hideous gap, this yawning crevasse, between progress and reaction, between our financial wealth and educational poverty, between our agricultural glory and our cultural shame.—Archibald Henderson.

OPINION AND COMMENT

Forty-three alumni dropped their day's work on October 2nd and rushed to Chapel Hill in response to the call of Alma Mater in the throes of a congestion of life and an over-strain of equipment. They came from mountains and sea-shore, piedmont and plain. In the presence of urgent facts they grouped their loyalty, their minds, and their wills. They enlisted for a cause—the cause of youth in North Carolina. They came to find out and they went back to start something. They did. They broke out all over North Carolina.

University Day, October 12th, witnessed a very uprising of the alumni of the University. Greensboro fired the opening gun, October 11th. An enthusiastic meeting there of University alumni went into executive session and planned for a state-wide public educational crusade that would top itself in a greater University. The Charlotte alumni in devoted meeting October 12th stated the cause of the University in robust resolutions shot through with vivid needs. The Raleigh alumni projected in a big way figures of urgent needs and imperative growth. The Hillsboro alumni sent a vigorous telegram to every other alumni association in North Carolina and are following this with a letter to all the alumni.

From Asheville to Wilmington alumni associations connected filial loyalty with the present crisis. Orange, Buncombe, Rutherford, Mecklenburg, Forsyth, Scotland, Guilford, Rockingham, Durham, Wake, Harnett, Wayne, Cumberland, Richmond, Gaston, Lee, Edgecombe, Chowan and New Hanover Alumni Associations faced the critical facts and enthusiastically committed themselves as individuals and groups, as citizens and alumni, to the compelling cause of the youth of North Carolina.

It is expected that every alumni association in North Carolina will meet this fall. The health of our youth, the life of the University, and the future of North Carolina are all congested together in the crowded dormitories of the University. No alumni association in this State will stand aside and break the chain of fighting units in this crusade for youth and the Commonwealth. The Central Alumni Committee reports action all along the line. Send a message from the field to the committee and share your ideas and plans with other associations.

The following telegram as the result of the October 12th meeting was sent by the Hillsboro Alumni Association to every other alumni association of University men:

The Hillsboro Telegram "As next door neighbors of the University and eye-witnesses of the congestion and overstrain of life there, we are overwhelmed with the fact that the University is in a crisis. We urge that you let the people have the facts in your town and county papers. The people will do the rest."

(Signed) Hillsboro Alumni Association.

Here on the campus University Day, 1920, had a significance peculiarly its own. The academic procession entered the doors of Memorial Hall as of yore. The maples along Cameron Avenue flamed with October scarlet and gold. But the real thought of the sons of the University centered on the name of General William Richardson Davie, the Father and founder of the University, and the quality of statesmanship possessed more than a century and a quarter ago by this distinguished, far-visioned North Carolinian and American.

The immediate attention of the day was concerned with the presentation and acceptance of the Davie portrait, the generous gift of Mr. Alwyn Ball. But the thought which intrigued the imagination was that 126 years ago Davie's dream took form and substance in dormitories and recitation halls for the generations of North Carolinians then to be. The concern which dominated the thought of the University on October 12th was how, with statesmanship like that of Davie, it might make certain for present and future generations a more ample, finer training.

The facts about the University which President Chase, Business Manager Woollen, and the alumni committee prepared for the information of Boys, Get the alumni should be known in every home the Facts in North Carolina. These facts make clear the imperative need for the tripling of the University plant. The feeding and sleeping arrangements, if doubled today, would not be abreast of the sudden congestion of the last two years. Add to the present congestion the wonderfully increasing output of the public high schools and the figures will no longer admit of small and gradual increases in appropriations. The needs are tremendous and the provision should be of the size of the needs. Let's face the needs in a big way. Boys, get the facts!

That the University of North Carolina is daily growing into a larger institution and functioning as a representative University is no A Greater where more definitely indicated Graduate School than in the growth and effectiveness of its Graduate School. On October 11, according to statistics given out, 123 graduate students from 10 states had registered since the opening of the Summer School (60 odd being now in residence) and were pursuing courses leading to the Master's and Doctor's degrees.

The full significance of this substantial growth doubtless may not be instantly obvious to the alumni. But the fact that 10 states are represented in its membership means that the quality of teaching of the University, the scholarly character of its publications, and the resources of its laboratories and libraries are becoming widely and favorably known throughout the country. It also means that in aiding 123 young men and women to continue their training in North Carolina the teaching profession of the South is to be greatly strengthened and that a foundation for real achievement in the arts and sciences is at last definitely laid.

For the alumni and the State it has an added significance. If it is to do its work thoroughly it must be provided with ample facilities. Fellowships, library endowments, a scholarly press, all are essential to its best work, and all must be provided in due course.

Some ten days ago THE REVIEW upon the receipt of one of the first copies of the book "Raleigh, the Shepherd of the Ocean," by Professor Failed to F. H. Koch, professor of dramatic literature in the University and director of Carry Our the Raleigh pageant, wrote the firm Trade Mark which printed it somewhat as follows: "May we congratulate you on having brought out the most attractive piece of bookmaking North Carolina has yet produced?"

The point we make here is not that we were attempting to say a pretty speech; but rather that through the co-operation of University teachers and a well equipped printing house, North Carolina has produced a book which in its physical makeup was second to none in the country.

The real point we are getting at is that the book would have been perfect had it only carried on the bottom of the title page the imprint: Chapel Hill, The University of North Carolina Press, 1920.

Had the University been able last spring to underwrite the University Press idea this book, which becomes the first offering in the great tercentenary celebration now being participated in by America, would have carried the University's imprint, its trade mark, to the four corners of the world. It would have helped sell the University of North Carolina to the scholarly world—a thing certainly to be desired, or rather to be done on all occasions.

Phases of the problem of selling the University advantageously to other groups than the scholarly world may well merit consideration at Not to be this time. The committee on alumni Overlooked organization is on the job as far as the alumni are concerned. The alumni, in turn, are expected to send in the orders from the State at large.

But a matter of tremendous concern in these days of congestion and incident overstrain is how the University is selling itself to itself—the student body and the faculty.

It must be remembered that Gerrard Hall accommodates only freshmen at chapel. The upper-classmen and professional students cannot be brought together except in Memorial Hall which can be used only in October and April-June. Obviously under these circumstances the University runs a great risk of lowered student morale.

It must further be remembered that the faculty, in its housing conditions, in its dearth of classrooms, in its lack of laboratory space, library requirements, and facilities of every conceivable sort, should receive every possible consideration which can in any degree alleviate the situation. Certainly every effort should be made by the administrative offices, particularly those that deal with light, and heat, and fuel, and laboratory and office supplies and equipment, to cut the burden to the minimum, and instantly.

To fail to sell the finest sort of Carolina to the student body and to the faculty will be nothing short of suicide.

General Julian S. Carr, '66, passed his 75th anniversary on Friday, October 15th, at his home in Durham, the day being made the General Carr's occasion on which his fellow townsmen and the citizenship of the State Birthday Party in general turned aside from their usual activities and paid him signal honor.

THE REVIEW only occasionally pauses to note the anniversaries of alumni. But in this instance it cannot refrain from wishing General Carr many happy returns and it congratulates him upon having been made the object of such a beautiful expression of genuine regard as that shown him by those among whom he has spent his days.

Furthermore, it points with gratification to some of his services to his community and the State by which his career has been marked, a brief recital of which was given by those offering public felicitations at the party. First of all, he has been one of the builders of industrial Durham. His chain of mills and the First National Bank represent solid industrial and financial achievement. Carr and Trinity churches bear testimony to his devotion to the religious welfare of his community. In 1897 he built for his city North Carolina's first public library. When Trinity College was moved from Randolph County to Durham he gave the land which now constitutes the Trinity campus and endowed the Carr Chair of Philosophy. In 1900 his gift of the Carr Building to the University ushered in the new building era on this campus. And only this spring he served as president of an association that led the movement resulting in the subscription of $200,000 for the Southgate Memorial building which is to be erected on the Trinity campus.

We make no effort to recount the long list of his various benefactions or labors for the public welfare. As a fellow alumnus we simply contemplate them and find satisfaction in them.

ALUMNI RESPOND TO EMERGENCY CALL

Forty-three Alumni Come to Special Conference to Consider Crisis at the University

In response to an urgent telegram from President Chase forty-three alumni from Wilmington to Marion dropped their work on October 2nd and came to Chapel Hill to meet with the President and a local committee of the faculty and students to consider the present overcrowded and undermanned conditions at the University and to suggest ways and means for the alumni particularly and the University generally to handle what President Chase called "the present intolerable situation."

They had dinner at the Coop, heard the situation outlined by Professor W. S. Bernard, who acted as chairman, by President Chase, by T. C. Taylor, a Senior in the University, and by Professor Frank Graham; and then discussed and debated the whole matter until 1 A. M.

"It was without question the most earnest, most enthusiastic, and most seriously-minded, determined alumni meeting I have ever seen, and it was the largest in point of numbers that has ever met at Chapel Hill except on stated occasions like commencement," said one professor afterward. His opinion was shared unanimously.

Program of Work Outlined

The concrete action of the meeting, which of course was acting informally and without authority from the General Alumni Association, was summed up in the following resolutions presented by K. S. Royall, of Goldsboro, and amended by L. P. McLendon, of Durham:

1. Resolved, That the University alumni of every county in the state, or the alumni in the cities of those counties where city meetings are more practicable, have a meeting on October 12, and that at said meeting there be presented in as forcible manner as possible the pressing needs of the University:

2. Resolved, That such alumni as are present take active charge of calling and holding said meetings in their respective counties and cities;

3. Resolved further, That there be appointed a committee resident in Chapel Hill, the function of which shall be to arrange for the said meetings on October 12 and other meetings and to furnish said meetings with data as to the needs of the University; and that said committee in order to arrange meetings on October 12 in counties not represented at the conference, be authorized to call on any alumnus present tonight to aid in arranging for such meetings in adjoining or neighboring counties;

4. Resolved further, That at said meetings on October 12 definite arrangements be made for a county or city educational rally at a date to be fixed by the aforesaid Chapel Hill committee, or in the discretion of said Chapel Hill committee, by the respective alumni meetings; and that the purpose of this rally be to spread the message of higher educational need throughout the communities of the state; that there be invited to the said rally the alumni and alumnae of the other state institutions and by special or general invitation such other persons interested in educational development of the state as shall to the alumni meeting seem desirable;

5. Resolved further, That at each of the alumni meetings on October 12 definite arrangements be made for another county or city meeting during the Christmas holidays, that at said meeting during the holidays such steps be taken or planned as will in the judgment of the meeting present to the Legislature in the most formidable way the needs of the University, and will suggest to the Legislature a definite plan by which such needs can be met;

6. Resolved further, That for the purpose of forming definite plans to present to the Legislature the President of the University be asked to confer if possible with the heads of the other state institutions of higher education and arrange an outline of the needs of all these institutions.

President Chase Presents Situation

Aside from these resolutions a great deal was said and discussed concerning the general situation and the best way of handling it. At the start Professor Bernard told in general terms why the meeting was called and what the University was facing because of the overwhelming demand that was being made upon it. President Chase in greater detail outlined the situation from the University's point of view.

He pointed out that dormitories built to accommodate 469 students were actually housing 738 and doing this by crowding, in many instances, four students in rooms designed for two, and this without counting the rooms in the town of Chapel Hill, many of them unclean, unsanitary, unfit in every way for living purposes; that dining halls designed for 450 were actually feeding 725; that, not counting the scientific and professional buildings the rooms in which could not be used for other purposes, there were only 19 class rooms available for general teaching purposes; and that he regarded it as impossible to hold together the faculty at the present salary scale.

On top of that he told in some detail, backing his statements in every instance with actual figures, how the demand for accommodations was increasing every year because of the increased output of high school graduates. "Five years ago the four-year public schools of the state turned out 800 graduates; last year they turned out 3,000 graduates, and they are just beginning to get in smooth working order," he said. "These high schools have now some 26,000 students and the number is increasing and is going to increase every year in the future."

He said that every institution of higher learning in the state was filled, that the situation at the University was reflected in every other college for men or women in the state, including the denominational colleges, and ended by saying: "Nothing short of a revolution in higher education will handle this situation in North Carolina."

T. C. Taylor, a senior, followed President Chase by an intimate and vivid story of the actual living conditions of the students, with shortages everywhere and overcrowding on every side. Professor Frank Graham followed both talks with an appeal for action that reached every man in the room.

Frank Graham Says State Will Do Its Part

"This is a state-wide crisis," he said. "Smaller groups than this with facts less vital than these have urged themselves into the life and decisions of people. With youth as our cause and with youth in our fighting ranks we cannot fail."

"North Carolina is saying politically, not consciously, but in actual results, that a North Carolina boy is not worth as much as boys in other states. Youth in North Carolina is stimulated to higher education and then has the door shut in his face by the state which pointed him the way. Says the state to her sons in sacred paraphrase, 'I go to prepare a place for you and if it were not true I would have told you.' We do not prepare the place and we dare not tell them."

"If the issue be the privilege of the few as opposed to the rights of all, we shall join the fight there. If the issue is taxes, we shall call it taxes and not beat around the bush of expediency. We will not tamely submit to the issue: more buildings or less boys. If it is a question of exemption of property or redemption of youth, North Carolina will vote for her youth."

"Without apology to faction, sect, or party, taking no counsel of fainthearted pessimism, you are the evangelists of a cause as wide and deep in its justice as the full glad life of youth. If we but strike out boldly, we shall find the people in heroic mood for a Crusade more Christ-like than that which impelled its thousands across Europe to death in the Holy Land. The Son of Man cares more for crowded dormitories than for an empty sepulchre. Suffer the youth of North Carolina to come unto the colleges and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of tomorrow."

General Discussion

For two hours the situation was discussed from every possible angle. Judge Winston in an impassioned declaration of faith in the University declared that on the issue of its immediate development he would stump the state from one end to the other. Bob House and Luther Hodges emphasized the universal need for educational facilities in all the colleges and the necessity of linking up all communities in the movement. M. L. John pointed out the state's need for school teachers for its public schools. "Where can we get them if not from the University? and how can we expect them from the University under the present conditions?" he asked. Brent Drane said that the University was the great unifying and democratizing agency in the state. "In the present-day outburst of state wealth it becomes more and more essential that we should keep alive this force," he said.

Give the People Facts

Charles Tillett, Jr., Oscar Coffin, and Dr. Gerald Murphy pointed out the necessity of laying the situation before the people in newspapers and discussed the best methods. C. F. Harvey emphasized the necessity of all the alumni uniting on the educational effort. Tom O'Berry, I. M. Bailey and Dick Wharton suggested concrete methods of action by alumni in meeting the situation and L. P. McLendon and Fred Archer suggested methods by which the administrative departments of the colleges could take action.

These Left Their Jobs to Come

Alumni present endorsed also a plan of supporting a hotel in Chapel Hill. The meeting broke up to the strains of "Hark the Sound." Those present were:

E. C. Byerly, Lexington; John Tillett, Charlotte; Victor Bryant, Durham; L. P. McLendon, Durham; Luther Hodges, Spray; W. Stamps Howard, Tarboro; Francis D. Winston, Windsor; W. F. Taylor, Goldsboro; E. R. Warren, Gastonia; P. H. Gwynn, Reidsville; John C. Busby, Salisbury; R. B. House, Raleigh; D. B. Teague, Sanford; C. W. Tillett, Jr., Charlotte; Eli Perry, Kinston; M. L. John, Laurinburg; Carter Dalton, High Point; C. F. Harvey, Kinston; Cheshire Webb, Hillsboro; C. R. Wharton, Greensboro; Leslie Weil, Goldsboro; W. R. Dalton, Reidsville; R. S. Busbee, Raleigh; L. F. Abernethy, Hickory; F. E. Winslow, Rocky Mount; Fred Archer, Greensboro; R. S. McNeill, Fayetteville; Lawrence S. Holt, Jr., Burlington; Henry T. Clark, Scotland Neck; O. A. Hamilton, Goldsboro; Francis O. Clarkson, Charlotte; N. G. Gooding, New Bern; Kenneth O. Burgwyn, Wilmington; O. J. Coffin, Raleigh; Dr. J. Gerald Murphy, Wilmington; I. M. Bailey, Jacksonville; J. H. Boushall, Raleigh; Tom O'Berry, Goldsboro; Kenneth S. Royall, Goldsboro; Brent Drane,

REUNION PLANS OF 1916

The class of 1916 began preparations for its five year reunion a year in advance with the holding last commencement of a meeting of the committee on permanent organization. W. B. Umstead, chairman, Robert B. House, and Francis O. Clarkson, comprising the committee, Francis F. Bradshaw and Oliver Smith assembled under the old elm behind the Old West and laid plans for the organization of a reunion that would be worthy of the class of '16.

In accordance with the plans formulated by this committee there has gone to each of the 250 men who entered in 1912 a letter telling him of the plans for the reunion, asking him for suggestions, and a questionnaire to be filled out with information which will bring each man's record since leaving the University up to date. War service, occupation, wounds, marriage, and children are some of the various classes of statistics sought. The committee plans to publish by Christmas a catalogue of the class summarizing the information secured through this questionnaire.

In connection with the reunion plans the committee is reorganizing the collection machinery which is to provide the University with a large addition to the Alumni Loyalty Fund at the tenth year reunion. At commencement of 1916 all the members of the class signed ten notes of $4.00 each maturing at successive University birthdays, and insured the three permanent class officers to the amount of $2,500.00, an endowment policy maturing in ten years. During the first year the class paid one and one-half premiums and this fine record was continued until the war called nearly every man in the class to its all-absorbing tasks, and payment of the notes lagged. G. Claiborne Royall, the class treasurer, promises to have the payments up to date when the class meets in June, 1921.

The exact form which the meeting next June will take is a matter of great mystery. The class of 1911, which had such a record-breaking stunt in nineteen-sixteen comes again this year, and the class of '16 which saw the good reunion on their senior year has sworn a mighty oath to go them one better. The committee has a plan 'tis said which will do this. The 1911 men say it cannot be done. For the result we will have to wait until next commencement and see.

Trinity won at tennis from the University, Oct. 9th by taking three matches to two. The sixth match was called off on account of darkness.

UNIVERSITY DAY

Portrait of General William Richardson Davie, Father of the University, is Formally Presented

General William Richardson Davie, who on October 12, 1793, laid with his own hands the cornerstone of the Old East Building, the first building erected by any state university in America, received on October 12, 1920, University Day, the full tribute of the University he founded 127 years ago.

Surrounded by the folds of the American flag, which he helped to plant firmly on this continent, the only existing life-sized portrait of Davie, made from life, was formally presented and formally received by the University on the platform of Memorial Hall from the walls of which looked down memorial tablets sacred to the fame of many of Davie's contemporaries.

The portrait was the gift of Mr. J. Alwyn Ball, of Charleston, S. C., whose wife, Emilie G. Fraser, was a grand-daughter of Davie's. It was presented by the Rev. William Way, rector of Grace Church, Charleston, and was accepted for the University by Mr. J. O. Carr, of Wilmington.

Winding across the campus under the trees with their first flush of autumn and past the historic popular which bears Davie's name, the academic procession, students and faculty, marched to Memorial Hall for the day's exercises. The Rev. Mr. Moss, of Chapel Hill, said the invocation.

Mr. Way Makes Presentation Address

In his presentation Mr. Way traced the history of the portrait from the time it was made in Paris in 1800 when Davie was a commissioner sent by President Adams to the French government, down through the Davie family until it came into the possession of Mrs. Ball. For many years it remained at "Trivoli," the family home of the Davies in Chester County, South Carolina. The portrait then belonged to Davie's son, Frederick William Davie, and by him it was buried during the Civil War, with other family possessions, on the banks of the Catawba River.

From Frederick William Davie it descended to his wife, Mary Fredericka Fraser Davie, and from her to Emilie G. Fraser, who married J. Alwyn Ball, the donor. Mrs. Ball died in January, 1920.

Work of Chretien

The portrait is the work of the French artist, Giles Louis Chretien. For many years it was thought to be the work of Saint Memin, another French artist, but recent investigations by art critics show it to be unquestionably the work of Chretien, who also made portraits of such notable Frenchmen as Robespierre, Mirabeau, and Marat. It is life-sized and is in an oval frame, thought to be the original frame, the whole being about 30 inches in height.

J. O. Carr Accepts Portrait

Mr. Carr, in accepting the portrait, told of Davie's high political ideals.

"On the whole there was no phase of public thought with which he was not acquainted and no problem of which he was not master," he said. "North Carolina has produced a score or more of really great men, all noted in their respective spheres and each excelling the other in some peculiar way; but it may well be doubted if any one has impressed his views upon the life of the state to the extent of General Davie. For more than twenty years after the revolution, he steered the making of our laws along lines charted by our constitution; as a lawyer he moulded the decisions of our courts in laying the foundations for the best we have in law; and as an educator his ideals have influenced the life of the University for more than a century.

President Chase Spoke

Following these two talks, President Chase spoke as follows:

This portrait, so generously given, so fittingly presented and accepted, has now become one of the most cherished possessions of the University. It only remains for me to remind you how altogether appropriate it is that this symbol of such a man should have come to us at such a time. The portrait of the man whose courage and vision ensured the founding of the University has become hers on a day when she stands at a turning-point in her history, at a time when the thought of what this man dreamed and what he did is destined to prove a strength and inspiration to us all.

What a vision was his! What think you of the men who founded her, in a forest glade, the first State University in all the Nation? What shall we say of him who had the courage to insist, in his troubled day, that if this new State of North Carolina were to become great, she must provide from the outset for higher education for her sons?

Consider but for a moment the difficulties which beset him. Here was land in plenty, thanks to the generosity of the citizens of this place. At the disposal of the University were a few thousand dollars, most of it an uncertain asset, on much of it the interest alone available. At her disposal, too, was a loan of ten thousand dollars from the General Assembly for buildings—a loan which Davie himself had fought through against heavy opposition, a loan which later was made a gift. Forest land, a little money, a legislative loan, a great vision, and a man who proposed to fashion out of these a noble and enduring institution for the service of this State! A man whose vision was a hundred years in advance of the thought of his time. For, after that autumn day in 1792 when Davie rested beneath the Poplar which bears his name, eighty-nine years were to pass before the State would begin to make from its treasury an annual appropriation for its University. The entire Nineteenth Century was to come and go before the State would add a dollar for buildings to the ten thousand that Davie had secured.

But for him there was no faltering, no compromise, no thought of delay until a more convenient season, when times should be more assured. His was a swift clean thrust home to the very heart of things. He took his stand on nothing less than a principle, and that principle was the absolute necessity, in a democratic State, of provision for higher education, regardless of difficulties, regardless of time and season.

Was he right? I offer but one bit of evidence; the mute testimony of the names of the sons of this University that are carven on the tablets of this hall. There they stand, for all men to read and ponder the service of this University to its State and its Nation. Has the hope of Davie been justified? Has the University of North Carolina been worth while? Has it been faithful to the high cause to which it was dedicated? I think that were Davie here today he would stand up and answer that it has.

History has witnessed that Davie was right. He was right because his ground was the firm ground of principle, not the shifting sand of expediency. And today, when the University of his vision is overwhelmed by its very success, crowded beyond its capacity, no longer capable of opening its doors to all youth of the State who are knocking for admittance, on fire with a passion for service that must of necessity be repressed and restrained—what, think you, would be Davie's response to such a challenge? Can you doubt his reply? Can you doubt the reply of any man who, like him really believes that it is the duty of the State to educate its youth? This University of the State, this University that is the realization of what Davie hoped and dreamed, asks but that she be set free to do adequately her task. If higher education is really worth while, if the University of North Carolina is worth while, the issue must be squarely met, as Davie would have met it. It must be met in the spirit that sets above every other consideration the fulfilment of a just and righteous principle.

Alumni Remember Alma Mater

The following messages from Carolina's sons and daughters scattered throughout America and other countries, were read by President Chase:

Sailing for the Orient on this auspicious day I send greetings to our oldest State University, with best wishes for a continuation of her rapidly-extending service to the State and to the nation.—Collier Cobb.

In Memoriam

Dean George Howe read, while the audience stood, the following list of alumni who died the past year.

William Leonard Lindsay, class of 1920, of Chapel Hill, died October 12, 1919.

Franklin Smith Wilkinson, class of 1857, of Rocky Mount, died November 14th.

Charles Wetmore Broadfoot, class of 1862, of Fayetteville, died in November.

Dr. Robert Rufus Bridges, class of 1908, of Wilmington, died in November.

James Stadler Hill, class of 1858, of Elk Park, died November 22d.

Dr. Edgar Reid Russell, class of 1893, of Asheville, died November 27th.

Dr. John Gray Blount, class of 1891, of Washington, died December 10th.

William Simpson Pearson, class of 1868, of Morganton, died December 11th.

Eugene Stuart Martin, class of 1860, of Wilmington, died December 17th.

Joe Younce Caldwell, class of 1913, of Statesville, died December 24th.

Graham Kenan, class of 1904, of Wilmington, died February 5th.

Ashbel Brown Kimball, class of 1895, of Greensboro, died February 17th.

Dr. Edward Chauncy Register, class of 1885, of Charlotte, died February 18th.

Capt. Edmund Jones, class of 1869, of Lenoir, died February 25th.

George Pierce Long, class of 1899, of Gainesville, Fla., died February 26th.

Charles Johnston Merrimon, class of 1891, of Memphis, Tenn., died March 17th.

Frank Lee Foust, class of 1903, of Raeford, died April 22d.

Stephen Ferrand Lord, class of 1867, of Salisbury, died in June.

Victor Silas Bryant, class of 1890, of Durham, died September 2d.

Dr. George Gillett Thomas, class of 1868, of Wilmington, died September 6th.

Edgar Love, class of 1890, of Lincolnton, died October 8th.

North Carolina, 6—Wake Forest, 0

The University opened the football season on Emerson Field, October 2, with an unsatisfactory victory over Wake Forest, 6 to 0. It was unsatisfactory because though Carolina had several opportunities to score, she did not, with the exception of the drive for the single touchdown, show the power to carry an assault through to the goal line. Up to the 20 yard line she could rush the ball without great trouble. But with a score in sight and with a natural stiffening of the defense the game showed no increase of driving power in either line or backfield at a time when increase was necessary.

North Carolina, 0—Yale, 21

Against Yale, in the second game of the season, October 9, at New Haven, the University just missed playing a wonderful game and by the same token just missed winning. Yale won, 21 to 0.

North Carolina, 7—South Carolina, 0

The University won the third game of the season from South Carolina, 7 to 0; the game was played on Emerson Field, October 16.

ALUMNI MEETINGS HELD

Alumni Associations Throughout the State Hold Big Meetings in Celebration of University Day

In celebration of the one hundred and twenty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the University, meetings of local alumni associations were held throughout the State. The meetings this year were the most numerous, best attended, and most enthusiastic in the history of the University. THE REVIEW records herewith brief accounts of the various gatherings and banquets which were held by Carolina men in celebration of this anniversary occasion.

Charlotte

The Mecklenburg County Alumni Association, the largest county association in the State, held a most successful banquet on October 12th in the assembly room of the Chamber of Commerce in Charlotte. Seventy-five alumni were present to partake of the turkey dinner and to take part in the counsels and deliberations of the body.

H. P. Harding, president of the association, was toastmaster, and Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the department of mathematics in the University, made the principal address. Dr. Henderson gave a graphic presentation to the alumni of the present desperate crisis in the University's life. He pointed out that several million dollars is required to make the University plant adequate to meet the demands that are being made on it now. "No democratic state," he asserted, "can become or remain permanently great which denies to its youth the right and privilege of higher education for constructive leadership and the practice of the enfranchising duties of social morality and good citizenship". Stirring resolutions were adopted by the association calling upon the Mecklenburg representatives in the General Assembly to take steps for securing from the State necessary facilities and funds for the University.

Brent S. Drane, Lawrence S. Holt, Jr., visiting alumnus from Burlington, John Tillett and Francis O. Clarkson made reports of the alumni conference held in Chapel Hill October 2d. Paul C. Whitlock spoke of the establishment of the school of commerce, and W. M. Jones gave a report on athletics. Dr. Alexander Graham, D. B. Smith, W. R. Matthews and Col. T. L. Kirkpatrick made talks, also. The alumni showed keenly their continued, deep concern over Alma Mater's present crisis.

Rev. W. A. Jenkins, '07, was elected president of the association. E. Y. Keesler, '14, was elected vice president and M. R. Dunnagan, '14, was chosen secretary.

Dunn

The Harnett County Alumni Association held a banquet in Dunn on the evening of University Day. This banquet was given by N. A. Townsend, former famous end on the Carolina football team, to the alumni of the county, and there were present twenty-one alumni, including doctors, lawyers, preachers, teachers, bankers, business men and politicians. Talks were made by Hon. H. L. Godwin, J. R. Baggett, E. F. Young, R. L. Godwin, Dr. C. H. Sexton, G. K. Grantham and others.

The association passed unanimously a resolution of rededication. The alumni present voted to rededicate their lives and spirit to the extension and help of the University. President Baggett writes: "The Carolina spirit was never better expressed in any meeting I have ever attended than in this meeting and we wish to assure you there is a better day for the University in our county at this time." J. R. Baggett, '00, of Lillington, was re-elected president of the association, and H. W. Prince, '17, of Dunn, was elected secretary.

Durham

In the expression of the Durham Herald the "pressing physical needs of the University commanded the attention of the Durham County Alumni Association almost to the exclusion of everything else," in the annual banquet held October 19th at the Malbourne Hotel, Durham. Each of the forty alumni present realized that a crisis was confronting Alma Mater and that something must be done quickly. W. J. Brogden, president of the association, presided as toastmaster. R. O. Everett, the first speaker, spoke earnestly of the need for a concerted effort to increase the facilities of the University for caring for the hundreds of young men and women who are asking for admission.

Frank P. Graham, of the University faculty, was present as a guest of the association, and his speech made a deep impression on the alumni as he brought graphically before them the serious condition existing at the University on account of the congestion. He called on the alumni to put on their fighting clothes and tell the facts about the University to the voters. He declared "We are fighting no foe but ignorance, with no weapon but the facts, and for nothing less than the youth of North Carolina."

John Sprunt Hill, of the board of trustees and the building committee, outlined what he stated to be the minimum amount of money needed during the next two years to bring the physical part of the University up to standard, $1,200,000. These figures are a minimum to relieve present congestion. To provide for any growth whatever a larger figure is necessary. Dr. J. M. Manning made a motion that the alumni go on record as endorsing Mr. Hill's plan for improvement, and the motion was passed unanimously. Victor Bryant, J. L. Morehead, and others made vigorous and pointed speeches. A committee was appointed to aid in arousing interest over the State in the needs of the University. Officers were elected as follows: President, Dr. Foy Roberson, '05; secretary, George Tandy, '16; treasurer, Marion Fowler, '17.

A telegram was received from Gen. Julian S. Carr, reading: "My heart is with you this evening. My love for North Carolina's biggest and brightest jewel was never quite so strong. For her welfare my prayers ascend, and her temples seem to be bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh."

Edenton

The Chowan County Alumni Association held a banquet in the home economics room of the high school building at Edenton on the evening of October 17th. Sixteen members were present. Dr. R. B. Drane, rector of the Episcopal church at Edenton, opened the meeting with prayer. M. L. Wright, president of the association, acted as toastmaster, and presented to the alumni the present urgent needs of the University. Everyone present was called on and responded with declarations of loyalty and affection for Alma Mater. The home economics department of the high school served the banquet, which was a very enjoyable affair in all respects. M. L. Wright, '08, was re-elected president of the association, and J. R. Nixon, '10, was re-elected secretary.

Fayetteville

One of the most enthusiastic and devoted assemblages of alumni held in the State on University Day was that of the Cumberland County Alumni Association. Thirty seven members of this association gathered around the banquet table in the Red Cross tea room at Fayetteville and renewed their devotion to Alma Mater. Robert S. McNeill acted as toastmaster. He told the alumni assembled of the overcrowded condition and urgent needs of the University. The alumni entered with enthusiasm into an agreement to see that the people are acquainted with the facts. Ringing resolutions were adopted, calling upon the State to provide adequately for the University, and so enable the University to perform its vitally necessary work for the youth of the State. Among the alumni who spoke briefly were: J. Bayard Clark, Dr. J. Vance McGowan, R. W. Herring, Dr. J. H. Judd, W. S. Snipes, and Lt.-Gov. O. Max Gardner.

Gastonia

At the call of A. E. Woltz, president, the Gaston County Alumni Association met in the auditorium of the high school building in Gastonia on October 12th. The business before the meeting consisted in a discussion of ways and means by which the association could aid the University. Resolutions were adopted expressing the continued love and loyalty of the association to Alma Mater, and pledging the utmost cooperation of the association towards securing adequate support from the State. Joe S. Wray acted as chairman of the meeting and Thos. J. Brawley served as secretary. The association plans to hold a banquet during the Christmas holidays.

Greensboro

The Guilford County Alumni Association held a most enthusiastic meeting and banquet on October 11th in the high school building at Greensboro. In the language of the Greensboro News: "The alumni had presented to them by Frank P. Graham, of the University faculty, a new vision of the possibilities of higher education in the State; grasping that vision, they bound themselves together in a covenant as crusaders for the cause. Upon a foundation of facts, Mr. Graham built a plea for the youth of the State which no one could hear unmoved. 'Suffer the youth to come into the colleges,' he pleaded, 'and forbid them not, for such is the kingdom of the future.'"

A. M. Seales acted as toastmaster. He called attention to the fact that last year North Carolina paid into the federal treasury over $163,000,000 in taxes and to the further fact that ours is the fourth state in the Union in agricultural production. These facts, he declared, belie any intimation that the State is unable to support an adequate system for higher education. Clem G. Wright suggested concerted action on the part of University alumni to bring home to the people of the State their responsibilities in the matter. He expressed the conviction that "nothing short of the hand of Providence could stop the University alumni and their friends once they set their hands and wills to a task."

Others speaking earnestly and developing the situation further were: E. D. Broadhurst, Dr. J. I. Foust, E. B. Jeffress, C. M. Waynick, Martin Douglas, J. S. Duncan, C. R. Wharton, Dr. W. C. Smith, and Frederick Archer.

The fifty alumni present voted unanimously to organize a movement for meeting the critical situation confronting the youth of the State and the University. A steering committee was appointed, consisting of H. B. Gunter, C. R. Wharton, C. M. Waynick, C. L. Weill, and W. S. Dickson. H. B. Gunter, '08, was elected president of the association and Benjamin Cone, '20, was elected secretary.

Hillsboro

The Hillsboro Alumni Association gathered on the evening of October 12th at a banquet given by J. Cheshire Webb, who acted as toastmaster. Though a small group the Hillsboro alumni threw themselves with a bang into the movement to make known and relieve the congestion at Chapel Hill. The group decided to send a telegram to every alumni association and to follow the telegram with a letter to all the alumni. Talks were made by Frank P. Graham, of the University faculty, Major John W. Graham, of the executive committee of the trustees, Solicitor Samuel M. Gattis, Messrs. Cheshire Webb, Norflett Webb, Will Heartt, C. M. Andrews, and Paul Collins. A steering committee was appointed composed of S. M. Gattis, Norflett Webb, Paul Collins, Cheshire Webb, and W. A. Heartt.

Laurinburg

The Scotland County Alumni Association held its annual banquet in the Chetwynd Hotel at Laurinburg on the evening of October 12th. Twenty-five members of the association were present and the occasion proved a most pleasant and profitable event for all. Prof. A. H. Patterson, dean of the school of applied science in the University, was present and made an address, in which he pointed out the need for the great and immediate enlargement of the University's facilities. Each man present promised that he would put forth his best effort towards securing adequate support for the University in her crowded and congested condition. J. D. Phillips, '12, was re-elected president of the association and W. S. Dunbar, '14, was re-elected secretary.

Lexington

The Davidson County Alumni Association held a meeting and smoker on October 14th in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce in Lexington. J. F. Spruill, president of the association, acted as toastmaster. Prof. M. C. S. Noble, of the University faculty, made the principal address of the evening. He was heard with much interest by the alumni, as he depicted graphically the crowded conditions at the University and called on the alumni to make known the facts everywhere. E. C. Byerly gave an interesting account of the conference in Chapel Hill on October 24. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic in the history of the association. The alumni voted unanimously to get solidly behind the movement for adequate support for the University.

Raleigh

Seventy-five loyal Wake County alumni and alumnae celebrated University Day with a banquet at the Yarrowhough Hotel in Raleigh on the evening of October 12th. Joseph B. Cheshire, Jr., president of the Wake County Alumni Association, presided. Prof. W. S. Bernard, of the University faculty, made the principal address. He pointed out the present crowded conditions and the need of immediate and permanent relief. He declared that the University belongs to the people of the State and that its mission is too big and too broad to be left to the care of the few thousand who have entered its doors as students. He pointed out that the taxpayers of the State must come to its rescue. Dr. E. C. Brooks, State superintendent of public instruction, ably backed up Professor Bernard in his appeal. As the head of the State school system, he has a lively realization of the gravity of the problem to be solved. O. J. Coffin, editor of the Raleigh Times, and R. B. House urged the importance of getting busy. Brantley Womble, president of the Wake County Club at the University, spoke of the present crowded conditions on the Hill. A resolution was adopted to call a meeting of all college alumni in Wake County this fall to take up the question of providing college facilities for the increased number of students everywhere.

The former officers of the Wake County Alumni Association were re-elected as follows: President, Joseph B. Cheshire, Jr., '02; vice-president, A. J. Barwick, '01; secretary, H. M. London, '99.

Spindale

Kenneth S. Tanner, of the class of 1911, entertained the Rutherford County Alumni Association at an enjoyable luncheon at Spindale Inn on October 12th. D. F. Morrow acted as toastmaster. F. F. Bradshaw, dean of students in the University, spoke on "Present Needs, or Crowded Conditions of the University." Several brief talks were made by alumni present. The association adopted resolutions urging adequate support of the University on the part of the State. A banquet or smoker will be held during the Christmas holidays, and the present students from Rutherford County will be invited to this affair. R. E. Price, '18, was elected president of the association and D. F. Morrow, Law '03, was elected secretary.

Spray

The Rockingham County Alumni Association held a most enthusiastic meeting and banquet October 11th in the Colonnade Hotel at Spray. A. D. Ivie was toastmaster and Judge P. T. Haizlip extended a welcome to visiting alumni. P. H. Gwynn, Jr., spoke of the Chapel Hill conference on October 2d. Luther H. Hodges spoke of the pressing needs of the University as set forth in the pamphlet of information, and W. R. Dalton spoke of the need for a realization of the work the University is doing on the part of the people of the State. The association plans to stage a higher education rally in November, to which alumni of other State-supported institutions and public-spirited citizens generally of the county will be invited. The association in conjunction with the Rockingham students in the University will hold a banquet at Madison during the Christmas holidays. W. R. Dalton, '07, was elected president. P. H. Gwynn, Jr., '12, Rev. W. J. Gordon, '03, and J. C. Lassiter were elected vice presidents. L. H. Hodges, '19, was chosen secretary, and P. T. Haizlip, '12, treasurer.

Tarboro

The Edgecombe County Alumni Association held a luncheon at the New Farrar Hotel in Tarboro on University Day. The program consisted in a discussion of the needs of the University, as set forth in the pamphlet issued by the University. The association pledged its hearty support to the youth of the State and to the University in all of its work. A banquet will be held during the Christmas holidays.

Wilmington

The New Hanover County Alumni Association held an enthusiastic meeting on October 12th. Careful consideration was given to the facts and figures set forth in the pamphlet sent out by the University just before University Day. The alumni were very sensitive to the grave situation confronting the University, and were resolved to help the cause of higher education in North Carolina. A mass meeting will be held in Wilmington in December under the auspices of the association, at which time a comprehensive discussion of the University's needs will be made. The secretary of the association was authorized to confer with the secretaries of other local associations, with a view to formulating plans for development of facilities in all State institutions. C. C. Covington, '79, was re-elected president; C. W. Worth, '82, and Dr. J. G. Murphy, '01, were elected vice-presidents; Harry Solomon, '11, was elected secretary; and L. J. Poisson, Law '10, was elected treasurer.

Winston-Salem

The Forsyth County Alumni Association held a meeting and smoker in the assembly rooms of the Chamber of Commerce in Winston-Salem on October 12th. W. M. Hendren presided as toastmaster and outlined the object of the meeting. He reports that there were forty members present and that "while this number was not large it was a very representative crowd and I think so far as the effort was to inform the alumni and through them the State, of the present critical situation, the purpose was accomplished." Burton Craige, '97, was elected president, and Rev. Douglas Rights, '13, was elected secretary.

CAROLINA LOSES TO A. AND E.

For the first time in athletic history the State College of Agriculture and Engineering has won in football from the University. Before nearly 8,000 persons in Raleigh, October 21 of Fair Week, A. and E. won the second renewal of the biggest contest in North Carolina, 13 to 3.

It was a splendidly played, hard fought and clean fought game, and the margin of victory lay in the brilliant running of Faucette, the Tech quarterback. On straight rushing it is probable that neither team could have scored, but the greater finish, drive and speed of Gurley, Johnson, and Faucette, and especially Faucette, won the day. Twice he broke loose and each time, though thrown before he reached the goal limit, he put his team in position to score.

In the third quarter he ran from scrimmage in the center of the field around his left end until he was thrown on the 2-yard line. A touchdown followed. In the fourth quarter he intercepted a long pass and raced 60 yards, shaking off four tacklers before he was himself tackled on the 15-yard line. The second touchdown followed that play, but not before one of the greatest stands that any Carolina team has made.

The lone Tar Heel score came in the first quarter. A. and E. opened sluggishly, though Gurley and Johnson ripped off 20 yards in the first two rushes. Obtaining the ball near the center of the field Carolina opened her most impressive attack. Rushes by Lowe, Spagh, and Pharr, and a pass from Lowe to Hutchins carried the ball to the 10-yard line. The Techs held twice and Carolina was penalized 15 yards for holding. Standing on the 35-yard line Lowe kicked a drop kick.

For the remainder of the half neither team could make appreciable progress. A. and E. once came close enough for Gurley to try a place kick, but most of the play was in A. and E. territory, with Carolina gaining a lot of ground but never showing the knockout punch, a repetition of her work in previous games. The half ended with Carolina leading 3 to 0 and with the distinct credit of outplaying her opponent thus far.

The situation changed in the second half, which opened with startling abruptness. Following the kickoff Carolina fumbled deep in her own territory. On the next play Gurley fumbled and McDonald, substituting for Pharr, scooped up the ball and headed for the goal line with a clear field. He was overhauled by Faucette after running 55 yards. Again Carolina stormed at the goal but failed and then A. and E. opened a slashing attack which carried the ball to the center of the field where Faucette made his first great run. On the goal line Carolina held once, but Johnson ripped through on the second play.

In the fourth quarter Lowe threw a 40-yard pass to Griffith, but Faucette, coming in fast, intercepted it and raced up the sidelines, dodging and shaking off tacklers, to the 15-yard line. A quick pass from Faucette netted the first down and brought the ball to the 3-yard line. The first rush netted about 2½ yards and the referee had to be careful to see that it was not over. The second rush netted nothing. The third rush netted nothing. The fourth rush gave the touchdown. It was a great defense, but not quite great enough.

The first half was Carolina's; the second half A. and E.'s. On straight rushing A. and E. gained more ground and looked more impressive, but at no time was able to gain more than two successive first downs. It was greater individual brilliance that won—and A. and E. had the brilliance and Carolina did not.

From tackle to tackle there was little difference; A. and E. was perhaps better in opening holes. The

A. and E. ends topped Carolina by a slight margin, largely on the Carolina right side, for Hutchins at left end played a whale of a game and he and Harrell held that wing tight. The other wing was easier to drive through. Fumbling was frequent. Carolina tackled well close in, but very badly in the open, particularly against Faucette on his second run. Four men hit him and bounced off—poor work, though stopping Faucette in full stride is no child's play.

Lowe was easily the best punter on the field and might have used a kicking game more effectually. He was also Carolina's strongest runner. With Tenney out of the game and with Pharr knocked off in the first quarter, the Tar Heel attack lost some of its power. Spaugh was very impressive on the defense and Hutchins was always conspicuous.

The game was cleanly played, and the cheering was sportsmanlike. In the fourth quarter with the tide definitely against Carolina, the Tar Heel rooters gave their best exhibition of the day and fairly lifted the sky with their salvos. The line-up:

Touchdowns: Gurley, Johnson. Goal from touchdown: Gurley. Drop kick: Lowe. Substitutions: Carolina, McDonald for Pharr, Owens for Poindexter, Abernathy for McDonald, Lipfert for Hutchins, Crayton for Cochran, Kennelle for Hanly, Poindexter for Owens, Williams for Griffith, Fulton for Spaugh; A. and E.: Pierson for Park, Wearn for Lawrence, McCoy for Faucette. Referee: Magolin, of Michigan. Umpire: Williams, of Virginia. Headlinesman: Sampson, of St. Albans. Time of quarters: 15 minutes.

FULLER RECONSTRUCTS VARSITY

Immediately following the A. and E. game Head Coach Fuller started a series of changes in the varsity line-up and in the first three days of practice had practically reconstructed the team. The changes were made in his expressed determination to put punch in the backfield and to give the team the power to drive across the goal line once it had come within scoring distance, a lack which was felt in all the early games.

Hutchins, left end, was shifted to the backfield; Hanby, right tackle, went to full back; Spaugh, full-back, went to one end, and Kernodle, substitute tackle, to the other end; Pritchard, right guard, moved out to right tackle, and Morris substitute guard, stepped into his guard position. The new varsity thus was lined up with Spaugh and Kernodle at ends; Captain Harrell and Pritchard at tackles; Poindexter and Morris at guards; Jacobi at center; and Lowe, Griffith or Harden, Hanby, and Hutchins in the backfield.

These changes were recognized as experiments and many shifts were tried in the week preceding the Maryland game. In its first scrimmage against the scrub team, however, the newly-constructed eleven undoubtedly showed more driving power than the varsity has shown in any practice this season. Ringing cheers from nearly a thousand students who staged the biggest demonstrations of the year after the A. and E. defeat may have inspired a rebirth of spirit. The work of the men in their new positions has been naturally ragged; it remains to be seen whether they can adapt themselves to new work and develop the necessary team-work.

Hutchins, who has looked better as a driving back than any other man in the backfield, played fullback at Randolph-Macon where he was rated the best full-back in the Virginia prep schools. He has already shown familiarity with his new position. Hanby will have more trouble. He is heavy, 190 pounds, and fairly fast, but has not played in the backfield before. Tenney, who was kept out of the A. and E. game because of an attack of tonsilitis, will almost surely win back his position when he recovers; but Pharr, with a broken bone in his ankle, is out for the season.

Spaugh, who has been shifted to end, is the best defensive back on the field and has been for two years; but he has not been so successful as a plunger. It is probable that he will be shifted back to the secondary line of defense. Kernodle, who is a natural player, has the strength, but needs to get the experience to make a finished end. Pritchard played tackle last year and is familiar with that position.

The new line-up gives more weight both to the backfield and to the whole team. Spaugh weighs 182; Harrell, 178; Poindexter, 189; Jacobi, 177; Morris, 178; Pritchard, 181; Kernodle, 184; Lowe, 161; Griffith, 168; Hutchins, 184; Hanby, 190. Other men who will probably break into the regular line-up before the Virginia game are not so heavy.

CAROLINA VS. VIRGINIA

The annual Thanksgiving football game between the Universities of North Carolina and Virginia will be played on Lambeth Field at Charlottesville, November 25. It will mark the first time any Carolina team ever invaded the Virginia citadel.

Every indication points to another flood of Tar Heels pouring in on the Virginians. The usual special train from Chapel Hill will carry the great bulk of the student body—and incidentally the faculty and residents of Chapel Hill. The Southern Railway reported in mid-October that applications for special Pullmans had come from half a dozen cities in North Carolina, and private advice from Charlottesville reports that a great crowd of Virginians will attend the game.

Early and mid-season games indicated another strong Virginia team. Rice Warren, an old Virginia coach, is in charge as the first professional coach Virginia has had in a decade. His best known players include Captain Michie, an exceptional end, and Rinehart, a slashing halfback, whose playing last Thanksgiving was the best individual work on the field by any back except possibly Lowe. Other veterans include Newman, who has been at tackle and at end; Hankins, center; Russell, halfback. The Virginia freshman team of 1919, which was unusually strong, has furnished several promising players to the squad.

Of her early games Virginia lost only to V. M. I., but the Cadets look at this writing to have the strongest team in the south. Virginia won handily from Hopkins and Rutgers, using the aerial game to advantage in the latter contest.

Announcement has been made at the University that the query which will be discussed this year by the high schools having membership in the High School Debating Union of North Carolina is: Resolved, That the policy of the closed shop should prevail in American industry. This contest is the ninth annual contest of the Debating Union, which is conducted under the auspices of the Bureau of Extension and the Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies. Last year the Asheville high school won the trophy, the Aycock Memorial Cup.

Last year's query of the High School Debating Union, Resolved, That the United States should adopt a policy of further material restriction of immigration, is being used this year by the Virginia high schools, in a State-wide contest.

The Alumni Loyalty Fund An Opportunity

Forty-three alumni from the four quarters of North Carolina dropped their work on October 2nd and came to an emergency conference at Chapel Hill to plan for the relief of Alma Mater's physical needs.

On October Twelfth—University Day—hundreds of Carolina men everywhere sent greetings and congratulations.

More than three thousand students and alumni had, on October 25th, subscribed a total of $130,000 to the Graham Memorial Building.

Loyalty, in every instance, prompted the thought or deed.

The Alumni Loyalty Fund offers every alumnus an opportunity to increase Alma Mater's service to the State and Nation.

THE UNIVERSITY IN PRINT

Dr. Herman Harrell Horne, '95, Professor of the History of Education and the History of Philosophy in New York University, has recently added to his growing list of volumes in the field of education a study of Jesus—The Master Teacher. In this his latest book (212 p. illus. D., International Press, 1920) Dr. Horne applies the standards of modern pedagogy to the teaching methods of Jesus and leads the reader to a practical consideration of how far these methods can be employed today. Other volumes by Dr. Horne intended for the use of study groups and growing out of his connection with The International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. are, The Leadership of Bible Study Groups, Modern Problems as Jesus Saw Them, and Jesus—Our Standard.

Dr. Holland Thompson, '95, Professor of History in The College of the City of New York, is the author of The New South, a Chronicle of Social and Industrial Evolution, published by the Yale University Press as the 42d volume of the fifty-volume set of Chronicles of America. The first three chapters of the volume deal particularly with the history of the South since 1876. The remaining chapters "discuss from the angle of an observer the development of agriculture and industry, labor conditions, the race problem, educational progress, and current social problems."

Dr. Thompson is writing another volume in the series entitled The Age of Invention which is to be a study of the effect of machinery upon American life. He is also editing a History of the War in three volumes to complete the great Harmsworth History of the World which was planned by Lord Bryce and is being published by the Grolier Society of New York.

Louis Graves, '04, and Ames Brown, '10, both veteran journalists with a long list of publications to their credit, were contributors to the October magazines of extremely interesting articles on Prohibition and Tobacco. Graves, who through the columns of The New Republic put Orange County on the map last summer as the producer par excellence of blockade whiskey, makes the State of Pennsylvania his most recent field of investigation, his findings being presented in the recent World's Work under the title Adventures in Prohibition. His conclusion, based on his study and despite the excessive wetness of Pennsylvania is "Finally prohibition will be taken as a matter of course."

Brown, who several years ago ran a series of studies on prohibition in the North American Review and other journals (analyzes in the October Atlantic Monthly the impending crusade against tobacco. While he does not say that battle is definitely joined, his article enumerates the forces which may be expected to enter the conflict and indicates the lines along which it will be waged.

The proceedings of the 19th annual session of the State Literary and Historical Association contains the following addresses by alumni: A North Carolinian at the Court of St. James During the World War, by A. W. McLean; Contributions of North Carolina Women to the World War, by Archibald Henderson; The Preservation of North Carolina War Records, by R. B. House; William Joseph Peele, by R. W. Winston; Edward Kidder Graham: Teacher and Interpreter of Modern Citizenship, by L. R. Wilson; Kemp Plummer Battle, by W. C. Smith. Dr. James Sprunt, a member of the Board of Trustees of the University and president of the Association, spoke on the Restoration of Jerusalem.

Alumni interested in student publications of the University can find in the new offerings of The Magazine, The Tar Heel and The Tar Baby many evidences of life and spirit. The Magazine (now called The New Carolina Magazine) appeared in a form very similar to that of THE REVIEW, and was on sale at twenty cents per copy during registration! Having discarded its former bellettristic nature, it is now a journal of opinion and information. At the same time the July Tar Baby was handed out to the Freshmen at two bits per, and since registration two additional numbers have come from the press, all as full of pep or powder as any of their predecessors.

The Tar Heel, a special number of which has recently gone to all the alumni, has settled down to its job of furnishing campus news to its readers twice a week.

WITH THE CLASSES

—More than one thousand people gathered October 15th on the lawn at the home of General Julian S. Carr in Durham, and paid tribute to General Carr in honor of his 75th birthday. The city declared a half holiday in honor of General Carr. The children of the city schools marched to the Carr residence and opened the exercises with the singing of Carolina.

Governor T. W. Bickett, on behalf of the State, paid tribute to General Carr in a brief address. He declared that the general's generosity and greatness are known from Hatteras to the farthest mountain peaks. Citizens presented General Carr with a loving cup. The student body of the University sent him a telegram of greetings and good wishes.

A Pioneer in the Stoker Field

Westinghouse was one of the first among the pioneers in the stoker field.

Although power stations have grown to enormous size, with sudden peak loads in some instances reaching as high as 300 and 400 per cent normal rating, the remarkable fact remains that the design of the Westinghouse Roney Stoker remains today practically the same as it was thirty-three years ago and that it still retains its firm position in the combustion field. This speaks for the accuracy of the original design. The Roney Stoker is particularly suitable for steady power demands with moderate overloads of 25 to 50 per cent, and it burns a wide range of fuels satisfactorily. Simple design, low first cost and ease of installation, strongly recommend it for plants of moderate size. Over three million horsepower have been installed.

Industrial expansion, however, has wrought many changes in power plant practice since 1887. Today mechanical stokers are called upon to burn everything from high-grade coals down to refuse. They are also called upon to meet the sudden and enormous steaming capacities. Hence, two additional stokers were added, and our line now includes the Chain Grate Stoker, particularly adapted to the burning of low-grade, high-ash fuels; and the Underfeed Stoker, which is unequalled in its ability to handle the sudden and enormous overload demands of central station service with the highest degree of efficiency.

Westinghouse
Success Is Based Upon Its Pioneer Work and Development in Electrical and Mechanical Engineering

1920

It is a fact of vital importance to the stoker buyer that we manufacture the three general types, because stoker application should be approached with an open mind and the stoker manufacturer should be guided in his recommendations purely by the facts that develop from a study of fuel and load requirements.

"How few of them are making any money"

TWO college men sat at luncheon recently in a New York hotel. One is a graduate of Cornell University, a man in the middle years; the other graduated from Amherst twelve years ago.

Both are presidents of successful corporations; and both are active in the endowment campaigns of their respective alma maters.

"The thing that has amazed me in this campaign," said the younger man, "is to discover how few of the men who were in my class at college are really making any money. They have been out twelve years, and yet many of them are doing hardly any better than had they never been to college."

"They never find out what business is all about"

THE older man nodded in agreement. "The same thing has impressed me," he said. "The trouble is that many men assume that a college education is, by itself, a complete preparation for business. They would never expect to succeed in medicine or law without special training.

"But they enter business from the university, get into a departmental position and stay there all their lives. They never master the relationship of the different departments to each other. They are cogs in the machine, without understanding quite what it is all about."

is understanding*

THE Alexander Hamilton Institute was founded by a group of business men and edu-

More than fifty universities

THAT the Institute is of special value to college men, is proved by the fact that 35 per cent of the men who enrol in its Modern Business Course and Service are graduates of American colleges and universities. The authoritative character of its training is proved by the adoption of its volumes as textbooks by more than fifty of the leading universities and colleges of the country.

cators who realized that modern business was developing specialists, but not executives; that somehow more men must be taught the fundamentals that underlie the operations of every department of business.

The Institute has only one Course. It takes a man out of college or a man who knows one department of business—advertising, or accounting, or costs, or factory production, or whatever his experience may have taught him—and gives him a working knowledge of all the other departments of business.

Such a man receives in a few months of reading what ordinarily would consume years of practical experience. He finds in the Institute a more direct path from where he is to where he wants to be. He has the satisfaction of carrying large responsibilities while he is still young.

Naturally and inevitably he earns more than the average man of the same years and education.

The members of the Advisory Council represent national leadership both in education and in business. They are:

Frank A. Vanderlip, the financier; General Coleman duPont, the well-known business executive; John Hays Hammond, the eminent engineer; Jeremiah W. Jenks, the statistician and economist and Joseph French Johnson, Dean of New York University School of Commerce.

Look over the largest businesses

MAKE a list of the most successful businesses in America. It is interesting to note that in every single instance they have among their officers and younger executives a large percentage of Alexander Hamilton Institute men.

In the United States Steel Corporation 545 men are enrolled; in the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, 346; in the Standard Oil Co., 801; in the Ford Motor Company, 343; in the General Electric Company, 402 and so on through the biggest concerns in America.

Surely when the leading universities and the leading business enterprises of the country unite in such unanimous indorsement, the training which they indorse must be worthy of your investigation at least.

"Forging Ahead in Business"

THE Alexander Hamilton Institute's Course is not for every man. It is no magic to save from failure the man who does not deserve to succeed. Most of the men enrolled in its Course would be successful, in the long run, even without its training.

The Institute is a broadener of vision; a more direct path to executive responsibility; a firm foundation for the man who is entering business on his own account. Any man who is not willing to be content with the small rewards of business will find it well worth while to send for "Forging Ahead in Business," the 116-page book which tells the whole story of what the Institute is and does. It's the Man That Counts

The human element probably plays a more important part in the making of explosives than in any other manufacturing process conducted on a large scale. There are no machines in the twelve great Hercules plants that need only to be started at the beginning of a day, stopped at the end, and which in the meantime carry out their tasks without attention.

Every machine used in the making of Hercules Explosives has a man for its master. Every motion it makes is watched. The results of its work are carefully checked. Nothing is ever taken for granted. No machine is looked upon as infallible.

In the gelatin packing house, for example, is a large machine which fills paper cartridge with *Hercules Gelatin Dynamite. Although this machine works with almost positive precision and accuracy, every cartridge which comes from it is inspected twice to make certain that it is properly packed. One inspection takes place immediately after the cartridge leaves the machine. Another before it is finally boxed for shipment.

The men who use Hercules Explosives know how dependable are the men who make Hercules Explosives. The Explosives themselves tell the story. Their power never fails those who seek its aid. In metal mine and stone quarry, at the bottoms of deep rivers and in the hearts of great mountains, where the engineer builds a city skyscraper and where the farmer blasts a ditch, Hercules Explosives live up to the name they bear.

* As its name suggests, Gelatin Dynamite is plastic. It is made by dissolving gun cotton in nitroglycerin and combining with certain other materials called "dopes." It is used principally for shooting in hard rock.

Life on the Ocean with Electricity at the Helm

IN the old days, life before the mast was rated in terms of man power but the new sea is measured in horsepower, with electricity as the controlling force.

A modern electric ship, like the "New Mexico" or the "California", is a great city afloat. With oil for fuel, a central power plant generates sufficient energy to propel the massive vessel and to furnish light and power for every need.

And on the shore the application of electricity to the loading, unloading and repair work saves time and labor.

To make possible marine electrification the future needs aboard ship had to be visualized and then the machinery engineered to meet those needs. In this capacity the organization, experience and facilities of the General Electric Company have been serving the American Navy and Merchant Marine.
